

ROSALIND AZOUZI FRAeS

Head of Education, Skills & Diversity | Royal Aeronautical Society

Rosalind is Head of Skills and Careers at the Royal Aeronautical Society (RAeS) in London, leading its outreach, skills and employability activities which cover a number of programmes including Cool Aeronautics for primary schools, the alta mentoring programme for women, apprenticeships and end point assessment, as well as careers coaching, advice and guidance for people of all ages. Rosalind works closely with schools, colleges and universities as well as with employers from across the aerospace and aviation sectors and is a part of the AGP Skills Working Group, Aviation Industry Skills Board and Aerospace & Airworthiness Apprenticeships Trailblazer Group. Based in the UK, Rosalind graduated with BSc French, Economics and International Business with Spanish from the University of Surrey in 1997 and worked in in EFL training, student placements and employability in the South of France and the UK, before joining the RAeS in 2004. She became a Fellow of the RAeS in 2020 in recognition of her work to support education and diversity for the aerospace and aviation sector. She is passionate about the power of education to change people's lives and ensuring more people from underrepresented groups, particularly girls, can explore the fantastic careers that the aviation industry offers to create a more diverse and inclusive workforce.